SUPERIOR NATIONAL FOREST

HEADQUARTERS

DULUTH, MN

The Superior National Forest has four different types of camping opportunities outside of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness: Fee Campgrounds, Rustic Campgrounds, “Backcountry” Campsites, and Dispersed Camping. Whether you’re in a tent or recreational vehicle (RV), one is right for you!

Fee Campgrounds

Fee campgrounds provide sites that are usually accessible to RVs and tent trailers, along with a few hike-in and tent only sites. There are accessible outhouses, drinking water, garbage cans, and possibly trails, fishing piers, boat launches, picnic areas, beaches, showers, and electricity. See individual campground Recreation Opportunity Guides for details. The next page lists 2012 fees and some amenities.

- You'll need to visit the pay station at the campground to register and pay a fee, or pay when you reserve a site if applicable.
- Please use the facilities provided such as fire rings, tent pads, and latrines.
- Dispose of garbage in containers provided.
- Water faucets are for collecting water only. Don't use these community areas to wash dishes, fish, or other items.
- Noise limits are enforced at developed campsites. Be aware that sounds at your campsite shouldn't disturb other campers.
- 9 person per site limit, group sites available.
- Interagency Senior & Interagency Access passes honored.
- Spurs on most sites hold one vehicle and one trailer. Additional vehicles may not park on grass or roads and may require a fee.

Rustic Campgrounds

Rustic campgrounds don't have drinking water or garbage cans, but they have only 1-8 sites and are free. They also have outhouses, tables, and fire rings. Sites were designed for tents. If you're camping in an RV or tent trailer, be aware that some sites are not suitable for these vehicles. These campgrounds were often developed with fishing in mind, so be sure to pack your poles.

- Maximum group size of nine.
- Only use the facilities that are provided for fires, tents, and waste. Do not make additional fire rings, tent pads, trenches, or catholes.
- You will need to pack out your garbage.
- Noise limits are enforced at developed campsites. Be aware that sounds from your campsite including radios, generators, or musical instruments should not disturb other campers.

Superior National Forest - Other Camping

What's that? While you are camping in the Forest, you may see triangular structures hanging from trees. These are gypsy moth traps, and are helping us monitor the gypsy moth population in northern Minnesota. Gypsy moths are an invasive pest species whose larvae strip trees of their leaves. Our native forest tent caterpillar also defoliates trees, but it occurs cyclically every ten years or so. Gypsy moths will attack the same trees year after year, eventually killing the trees. Gypsy moths lay egg masses on lawn furniture, parked cars, and other outdoor objects and so are easily unintentionally spread by campers. Please check your equipment for these unwanted hitchhikers!

“Backcountry” Campsites

“Backcountry” campsites are the same style of campsites you may know from the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness, but since they are not in the BWCAW, fewer restrictions apply. These single sites outside of a campground have a firegrate, flat space for a tent, and wilderness latrine (an outhouse without the house), a group size limit of nine, but no permits or fees.

- Please use only the facilities that are provided for fires, tents, and waste. You are not allowed to make additional fire rings, tent pads, trenches, or catholes.
- You will need to pack out your garbage.
- The Ranger Districts and the Forest Supervisor's Office in Duluth have further information and locations of these sites, including the current Forest Map.

Dispersed Camping

If your idea of camping is literally off the beaten trail, most of the Superior National Forest outside of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness is open for dispersed tent camping. This is camping outside of designated sites - just you and the woods without latrines, fire rings, or any additions. Unlike National Parks, you do not need a backcountry permit for camping outside of designated sites in the National Forest. You do, however, need a large dose of common sense and Leave No Trace ethics.

- Be aware of fire restrictions that apply to campfires outside of developed campsites. In dry conditions, campfires may be banned in the general forest, but still allowed in campgrounds.
- Parking motor vehicles or trailers is not allowed except at areas developed for that purpose.
- You may not construct any “improvements” at your camp, including trenches, or cut live trees. Disperse all signs of a campfire if you use one, or use a campstove.
- You may not leave your camping equipment unattended for more than 24 hours.

Campfires may be restricted or banned in dry weather, so bring a stove. Never leave campfires unattended. Be sure your fire is out before you leave the campsite.
